

INDUSTRY AND LABOR TO MEET IN CONFERENCE

President Wilson Announces He Will Promote Discussion of Vital Issues.

HIS LABOR DAY MESSAGE

Suggestion of Senator Poindexter Is in Effect Adopted by the President; Meeting to Follow Wilson's Return From Speech-Making Trip.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—In a message to be read before all Labor Day meetings throughout the country and in which he announced he soon would call a conference of labor and industry to discuss issues of vital importance to each, President Wilson appealed to every citizen to promote production and to refrain from doing anything that would tend to increase the cost of living; expressed gratification with the manner in which leaders of organized labor have received his plan to meet the wage demand situation and said he hoped the workers would move with the government instead of against it in the solution of the great domestic problems.

The conference proposed by the President was suggested by Senator Poindexter last week as a means of arriving at the seat of the unrest which is growing in the country.

In discussing the proposed conference, which likely will be called within a few days so it may be held just after the President returns from his speaking tour in the West, Mr. Wilson said the fundamental means of bettering the whole relationship of capital and labor "and putting the whole question of wages upon another footing" would be discussed. Plans for such a conference have been urged by both members of Congress and cabinet members. Announcement at this time that it would be called was expected to alleviate much of the tension that has prevailed in labor circles for some time.

Sixteen suits of men's clothes. Three suit cases. Two hand-bags. One-half dozen straw hats. Men's and ladies' shoes, umbrellas and underwear. The value of the stock stolen was placed at $600.

The Mount Pleasant police and the State Constabulary from Greensburg were notified as soon as the robbery was discovered. They picked up clues, which it was said, led them to Scotland. Arrests are to follow soon, it is declared.

KNOXVILLE QUIET

City Under Martial Law After Race Rioting.

KNOXVILLE, TENN., Sept. 1.—Quiet prevailed throughout the city and suburbs this morning after the race rioting of Saturday night and Sunday. The city was under martial law last night with military patrols in all the business sections and in the territory where negro population is greatest. No disorder was reported through the night. Pedestrians and automobiles were ordered off the streets everywhere in the city at 10 o'clock last night and few were in evidence subsequent to that hour.

Every pedestrian or automobile seen was held up by a soldier or policeman and was made to give an accounting before being permitted to proceed.

Despite the fact that today is a holiday expected crowds had not appeared on the streets. During the morning here and there groups of men appeared but they were not permitted to gather in great numbers. The "move on" order being enforced by police and militia patrols. Negroes were searched for firearms and other weapons. Those who were out for any purpose were held up, questioned and examined for arms, unless they had permits certifying to their brands or personalities.

Bishop F. J. Hargrave, colored, a leading ministerial worker among the colored people of the city, issued an appeal to the men and women of his race in which he urged that they maintain order and decorum and refrain from violence of any character. He assured them that the white people are their friends. He asserted that the trouble of Saturday night and Sunday was due to the "lowest type of blacks and whites and not the better element of either race, who have to suffer the consequences."

REFUSES TREATY DRAFTS

President Says It's Impossible Until They're Adopted.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—President Wilson declined today to give the Senate Foreign Relations committee the tentative draft of the treaties with Austria, Hungary, Turkey and Bulgaria as requested by the committee on the grounds "that it would tend to take the function of negotiating the treaty out of the hands of executives."

In a letter to Chairman Lodge, President Wilson said that as the treaties still were in process of negotiation he considered it "out of the question" to give the drafts. Senator Lodge wrote in reply that the committee had asked only for such information as it would be compatible with the public interest to give and added the decision as to whether it be expedient to give an information at all undoubtedly rested with the President.

At the same time the President refused the committee's request for the declaration of June 16, signed by the United States and other powers to cover military occupation of the Rhine. "A certain degree of embarrassment" would be caused, the President wrote, if the declaration were made public.

OBSERVANCE OF LABOR DAY HERE IS QUIET

General Lull in Business and Industry the Only Noticeable Change.

TOWNSHIP SCHOOLS BEGIN

Fall Term Opens in Some Districts But Day Mostly Consists of Enrollment and Assignment of Work for Next Day; D. T. H. S. Enrolls 210

Suspension of industry almost as a whole and business in large measure marked Labor Day in Connellsville. Employees of most industrial establishments which found it possible to close for the day were given a holiday. All the large stores and many of the small ones did not open for business. The grocery stores suspended at 10 o'clock, as a rule, and even the drug stores observed holiday hours. The banks did not open.

The fall in industry and business was noticeable in the crowds which congregated in the streets and the heavier traffic on trains, many taking advantage of the opportunity to get out of the city for the day, either on the regular trains or excursion trains. Many went to the lake.

The fall term of school began in a number of townships, including Dunbar and Connellsville. At the Dunbar township high school at Leasener 210 students were enrolled, which was considered a wonderful record for the opening day, and Labor Day at that. Registration and assignment of work for tomorrow marked the limit of the activities for the day and the students were soon dismissed to enjoy another day of vacation before getting down to routine work tomorrow. No reports were available from the grades in Dunbar and Connellsville townships.

A considerable representation of persons from Connellsville and vicinity planned to go to Bear Run this afternoon where they will be guests to night of W. D. McGinnis and S. P. Aene. They will remain also tomorrow.

There is no general celebration of Labor Day in the county.

Yates, who was in the front seat, grasped the steering wheel out as he did so his sleeve pulled the throttle lever and the machine plunged forward so suddenly that it overturned on the roadside.

DYNAMITE USED AS NOISE MAKER AT SERENADING; 14 ASKED TO SETTLE DAMAGE

Several months ago a lot of young men gathered at the home of Martin P. Paes in Springfield township to serenade a relative of Mr. Paes who had just been married. The owner of the house informed the young bloods that the bride and bridegroom were not at home. His statement was not accepted as the truth and the young men proceeded with the serenading. In addition to the usual means of creating noise it was alleged use was made of dynamite in liberal quantities with the result that the concussion loosened the plaster in two rooms to the extent that part of it fell. The owner of the house estimated the damage at $28.25 and demanded payment. It is said the serenaders agreed to settle, but failed to do so.

Happy Mothers

Many mothers who in order to keep the home neat and attractive, the children well fed and dressed, continually overdo.

The experience of motherhood alone causes a severe strain upon the system, from which many women recover slowly, and serious feminine disorders may develop unless great care is taken to prevent them.

To such women Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is invaluable. For many years this root and herb medicine has been recognized as the standard remedy for woman's ills, restoring them to a normal, healthy condition.

Mrs. Morgan's Case

East Hampton, N. Y. — "For two years I suffered with a female weakness, pains in my back and painful periods, and I was so weak and tired that I was not able to do my work. A friend told me to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it gave me great relief. My pains left me and I am now able to do my work and feel fine. You can publish my testimonial and if your Vegetable Compound does others as much good as it has me I will be very much pleased."—Mrs. CHARLES E. MORGAN, Care of E. L. Dennett.

A Word to Childless Women

There are women everywhere who long for children in their homes yet are denied this happiness on account of some functional disorder which in many cases would readily yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Such women should not give up hope until they have given this wonderful medicine a trial.

KILLS DAUGHTERS

Insane Mother Pounds Their Heads
With Hammer.

By Associated Press.

BUCKHANNON, W. Va., Aug. 29.—Mrs. William Stalnaker, 47, wife of a Baltimore & Ohio locomotive engineer of this city, became suddenly insane this morning at her home on Kanawha street, seized a hammer and beat her two children on their heads as they lay sleeping in bed, inflicting injuries from which they died shortly afterward in the Foreman hospital. The victims are Mary, aged six, and Mildred, 15.

After mortally wounding the two children the demented woman went out into the yard and attacked her 18-year old daughter, Grace, who was carrying an infant sister in her arms. Grace was slightly injured before a brother grabbed Mrs. Stalnaker and disarmed her. The babe was unborn.

Mrs. Stalnaker declared she had planned to kill all six of her children with the hammer and then drown herself in a bathtub. She was taken to the state asylum for the insane this afternoon.

Mrs. Stalnaker and her daughter, Grace, prepared breakfast for Mr. Stalnaker this morning, as he was leaving for his train run. At that time she apparently was in normal health and mind.

DON'T DELAY CANNINGS

Housewives Urged to Make Best Use of Big Supply of Vegetables.

HARRISBURG, Sept. 1.—The Bureau of Markets of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture sends out the following forecast regarding the supplies of near-by fruits and vegetables for the present week:

"Housewives are urged to make the best use of the many vegetables available in large quantities this week. Every can put up means perishables saved and a tasty dish for the difficult winter menus. Beans, beets, sweet corn, cabbage, cucumbers, onions, peppers and tomatoes promise to be plentiful practically throughout the state. The eggplants and summer squash can be tried and served in place of meat or can be prepared in many other attractive ways. A wide choice of fruits includes the delicious Grimes Golden apples and several varieties of pears and plums in addition to the peaches, which are favored by many. The housewives who prefer the yellow peaches for canning will be glad to learn that the Elberta and Crawford peaches are here.

"There is a good supply of near-by cantaloupes and watermelons moving to market in most sections. The first grapes are ripening and reports indicate that there will be a good crop this year."

Now that ostrich feathers have returned to favor the woman that has cared for her plumes will bring them out to find them increased in money value and available in a number of ways. Fashion approves of ostrich plumes in many forms and plumes are used not alone in millinery but as decorations for evening dresses and for making the handsomest fans. The plume form lustrous fancy feather millinery ornaments, neckpieces, wreaths and fringes and are fashionable in both the curled and uncurled state. Handsome wreaths for hats are shown with the feathers along one side of the rib curled and along the other straight.

If plumes that have been laid away are in good condition but soiled it is not a difficult matter to clean them. except that the curling process is a little tedious. They may be washed in a lukewarm suds of soft water and castile soap. They are shaken in the suds and drawn through the hand to squeeze out the soiled water. After they are clean they should be rinsed in warm, clear water and wrapped in cheesecloth or other absorbent material and put through an ordinary clothes wringer. But the rolls of the wringer must not be close enough to damage the feathers.

After this washing process they should be shaken until dry. Holding the feather by the rib it is shaken and gently beaten against the other hand. If the little flues cling together this may be corrected by holding them over the spout of a steaming kettle. When the plume is thoroughly dry it is ready for curling.

An ordinary table knife will answer for curling a plume. The plume is drawn along the edge of the knife between it and the thumb. The trick is to curl the flue only at the end and not too tightly. Each flue is to be

MONDAY EVENING, SEP. 1, 1919.

AN APPROPRIATE MESSAGE.

No more appropriate Labor Day message could have been issued by President Wilson than announcement of his acceptance of the suggestion of Senator Poincaré that a national conference of employers and employees be held to "discuss fundamental problems of bettering the whole relationship of capital and labor and putting the whole question of wages upon another footing."

Nothing is so much needed as getting together in order that we may work together in peace time in the same spirit with which we stood shoulder to shoulder in war time.

WHY THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS WILL FAIL.

In both the public and the private discussions of the League of Nations covenant consideration has been given almost wholly to the plan as a political issue, and as a means of preventing war. So strongly has the latter feature been stressed by President Wilson and other supporters that many persons have come to regard the adoption of the league as a great moral and religious movement which is to banish war forever. This view has been accepted by people with little or no heed to the real truth that the covenant, as the Senate has been asked to ratify it, shows an alarming lack of morality and religion. This noteworthy, if not also significant, omission is by no means strange when the document is studied with reference to the circumstances under which it was framed, and the injustice and insincerity with which some of the principles enunciated by it have already been applied; but few persons have taken the pains to so study it.

Attention has at times been directed to the failure of the Peace Conference to give any recognition whatever to a Supreme Being, in either the conference deliberations or in the instruments drawn by that body. Occasional notice has been taken by the press at this forgetfulness of God on part of the so-called peace makers, and Senator Gore, the blind statesman from Oklahoma having the mental vision to see the necessity for following precedent in historic state papers in making acknowledgment of the existence of a Supreme Being, has proposed an amendment to the treaty covenant supplying the omission.

It was not, however, until Eugene Thwing, the widely known author and publicist, made an analysis of the league covenant from the moral and religious standpoint, that the deficiencies and weaknesses of this much over-praised instrument in these respects have been set forth with striking clearness. This keenly analytical, brilliant and unanswerable presentation strips the whole League of Nations plan of the last vestige of claim that it must be supported on moral or religious grounds or on the ground that it will save the world from war.

This remarkable mental vivisection of the league covenant, which is being published in installments in The Courier, beginning today, first appeared in the columns of the Baltimore Manufacturers Record. Commenting upon it the Record said: "Mr. Thwing leaves not a thread of that garment with which to clothe a creature whose creators definitely refused to recognize the Supreme Creator as the over-ruling God of all world affairs."

If you would gain a true conception of the league; its history and its inconsistencies; learn why it is a moral rather than a political issue and have your faith in the eternal verities strengthened, you should carefully read every one of the installments of this most forceful and convincing arraignment of the league that has yet been penned. Then will you know why it "will crumble and disappear when the shouting and tumult die."

There remains some doubt in the minds of many citizens as to whether court adjourned at noon today to give the tired employees an opportunity to enjoy Labor Day, or the court itself an opportunity to partake of a rest cure in the grand stand at the speedway.

Among the army veterans the game is now, "Where do I get my Victory button?"

Citizen Bufano in proposing to donate mountain farm land for an orphanage home is setting an example to other owners of property of this kind with respect to a permanent Boys Scouts camp.

It is more than a suspicion that that German army which is being sent to Russia ostensibly to help Czechs is in reality to help Czechs Germany's hold on the great Slavic Empire.

The League of Nations a Moral Issue

Eugene Thwing in Manufacturers Record

Part I

The American people as a whole prefer righteousness rather than iniquity in its national affairs and in its dealings with other nations. Whatever their religious creed, and even where no religious creed is strictly held, the American people of all sects and denominations believe at heart that "righteousness exalteth a nation." "In God we trust" is not an empty phrase, and no political party can safely treat it with scorn or defiance.

The League of Nations, as now proposed, is a moral issue, above all else, and it is necessary for the American people to know why.

The League of Nations is a device of Man's contrivance, which was built without recognition of God's governing hand in the affairs of men; it was constructed without any public acknowledgment of Him, and without public appeal for His guidance.

During all the sessions of the Peace Conference, when the most vital and fundamental issues of world policy were being considered; when the most serious and far-reaching problems of humanity were being discussed, amid bitter disputes and clashing interests; when the delegates of many nations were groping blindly for conclusions which would mean life or death, slavery or freedom, misery or happiness to hundreds of millions of human souls—not once was any appeal made to Almighty God for light and guidance in their counsels.

Even the President of our own Christian nation went away to his self-appointed task without any public acknowledgment of his dependence upon God, nor any request to the people of America to seek Divine guidance for him in his mission. No religious service nor public prayer of any kind was allowed in connection with the long, troubled conference. Earnest written petitions were presented by the Christians outside the conference that there be some invocation of God's blessing and guidance in the work to be done, but official reply was made that there was no time for such service in connection with the conference. Man had serious work to do; there was no time to bother with God!

And Almighty God turned away from that conference in anger at that and set His curse upon it as of old. In these words: "Woe to the rebellious children, saith the Lord, THAT TAKE

The weatherman must have received a bunch of "concepts" for the "auto classic" today.

Tomorrow is September 2nd and the second chance you will have to establish your right to vote.

"Swinging around the circle" and stinging the supporters of the peace treaty will be the big sporting events of the week, beside which the speedway races will pale into insignificance.

Two of a Kind.

Having heard of Arnold Bennett, the author, Henry Ford said, on the witness stand, in response to an inquiry, that Benedict Arnold was "a writer," which reminds us of the story related by George Harvey concerning his conversation with a man of Ford's type. After talking with the man for some time about various things, Harvey said: "Have you ever read 'Puddenhead Wilson'?"

"Oh, yes," was the reply. "I voted for him."

Our Guarantees of Peace.

Fort Wayne News.

The league of nations is presented to us as a guarantee of peace. But we recall very distinctly that the man who so presents it, presented himself as a guarantee of peace in the presidential campaign of 1916. And he did this thing at a time when he knew that war was inevitable and unavoidable.

HONORS.

Wear them simply, gentlemen! Wear the laurel and the bay.

Not as signs of pomp and pride, or as jewels for display.

Lend no boastful tongue to them—

he who does the best he can,

Though men fail to honor him, passes by no less a man.

You who know the smile of fame and are favored by the throng,

Take what men are pleased to give; honors fall where they belong.

But they tarnish and they fade and the glory in them dies.

When men flout them vulgarly before their fellow-workers' eyes.

Honors do not change the man—

they're but raiment to be worn;

Kings, with all their pomp and pride, may still be creatures fit for scorn.

Were you gentle? Were you kind?

Now has honor come your way?

You have not been changed one bit—

you should still be kind today.

Wear them simply, gentlemen! Prize your medal, if it will.

Take what men are pleased to give, but be meek and humble still.

Lend no boastful tongue to fame; this was true since life began.

He who has no crown to wear, still may be a noble man.

Try our

COUNSEL, BUT NOT OF ME (Jeremiah 38:1.)

And in these words: "Thus saith the Lord: 'Cursed be the man that trusteth in man and maketh flesh his arm, and whose heart departeth from the Lord.'" (Jeremiah 17:5.)

And so, having rejected the counsel of the Almighty, these delegates of many nations proceeded to build their own devices, regardless of the warning that—

"The Lord bringeth the counsel of the nations to naught; He maketh the devices of the people to be of none effect." (Psalm 33:10.)

They constructed an edifice of their own contriving, after many bargains, and mutual threats, and compromises of principles, and violations of justice, disbelieving or defying the warning that "except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it." And they ornamented their structure with beautiful words, and played before it the music of fine-sounding ideals, making it "indeed appear beautiful outward," while within it was "full of dead men's bones, and of all uncleanness." And they called their edifice "The League of Nations," dedicated to the "Peace of the World."

And, having ears, they heard not the awful sound which came from the Eternal Throne:

"He that sitteth in the Heavens shall laugh; the Lord shall have them in derision. Then shall He speak unto them in His wrath, and vex them with His sore displeasure." (Psalm 2:4-5.)

AMERICAN LEGION WILL OPPOSE ALL CANDIDATES OF DOUBTFUL LOYALTY

Persons of doubtful loyalty and especially those whose disloyalty has been established who seek legislative or other public office will be vigorously opposed by The American Legion, the national organization of American veterans of the Great War. This action is urged upon the entire membership of the Legion through 3,000 posts already organized, in a resolution adopted by the National Executive Committee, in session at National Headquarters, 29 West 44th Street, New York city.

The resolution was prepared by a committee composed of Bishop Charles H. Brent of Buffalo, N. Y., formerly senior chaplain of the American Expeditionary Forces, Henry Leonard of Colorado, and Dr. Richard Derby of New York. It reads as follows:

"Resolved: That The American Legion in accordance with its announced principles as expressed in the preamble of its constitution and in the resolutions adopted by it in caucus assembled, stands squarely against violation, or threat of violation, of law and order, whether by individuals or aggregations of individuals; that it advocates—and urges upon its membership to advocate—the imposition of full penalties upon violators of the Espionage Act; that it is immutably opposed to, and urges its membership to oppose, the admission to the national legislative body, or to any other public office, of persons of doubtful loyalty, and more especially of those whose disloyalty has been judicially determined."

Failure of Congress to require alien slanders to serve in the recent war will constitute one of the blackest pages in the history of America's war preparations, according to an article on "The Sacred Alien Slacker" by Representative Roscoe C. McCullough of Ohio in the current issue of "The American Legion Weekly." The American Legion is supporting the Johnson bill now before Congress which provides for deportation of enemy aliens interned during the war and which prohibits such aliens from ever re-entering the United States after they have been deported.

"Almost two million aliens were not free from military service but were slanders of the worst sort," writes Mr. McCullough. "Probably the greatest injustice that was done the American soldier in the war was the fact that alien slanders were allowed to go free from military service. It was conceded that aliens owing allegiance to enemy countries should not be taken into the military service of the United States. It was also conceded that aliens of neutral countries should not be required to serve. But why the emergency should have passed without requiring aliens who owed allegiance to co-belligerent countries to serve is almost beyond comprehension."

"That the exempting of aliens had a bad effect in various communities, especially industrial communities, is evidenced by the fact that complaints were constantly being made by draft boards and by citizens of the conduct of the alien slacker after he had been exempted. He became arrogant and flaunted in the faces of the friends and relatives of soldiers, as well as the American boy who was eligible for service, the fact that he, an alien, was especially favored by the government—that he could remain at home to take the American boy's position and profit by his absence, while the American boy or the naturalized alien was required to respond to the call of the colors and to do his duty."

"There can be no doubt about the hostile feeling of the American soldier and the American people generally toward the alien slacker. The matter of general deportation, however, presents many serious problems, and in the face of the sentiment that exists against the alien slacker I am fearful that because of the opposition of the State Department, and the fear of international complications, as well as the arguments against labor shortage, that those who are in favor of drastic action against the alien slacker will probably be again disappointed."

"The failure of Congress to require aliens to serve somewhere will constitute one of the blackest pages in the history of our war preparations."

RAIN CAUSES BOXING SHOW TO BE POSTPONED UNTIL NEXT SATURDAY

When Weather Clears at 9 O'clock Big Crowd Is On Hand for the Bout.

On account of the heavy rains all day Saturday, the boxing card arranged for last Saturday was postponed until next Saturday, September 6. The promoters were seriously thinking of putting on the show to night, but on account of the speed way races at Uniontown and the excursions arranged by the railroads, it was thought advisable to extend the time until Saturday.

Fully 2,000 fans would have taken in the show, even after the weather cleared, about 9 P. M., which speaks louder than words that the card arranged met with their approval, but at that time, the out-of-town fighters had left for their homes.

Johnny Kerston made a good impression on the fans to whom he was introduced. Bob Todd his manager, agreed with the promoters that it would be advisable for a postponement—though it entailed an extra heavy expense, but as the management says, it intends to cater to the fans and to put boxing "on its feet" here again, so the extra expense caused no worry.

The same card is arranged will take place on Saturday next. The tickets which have been sold, will be honored, in fact, the original tickets will be the only ones on sale.

The Devil's Own

A Romance of the Black Hawk War

By Randall Parrish

Author of "Contraband," "Shaw of the Irish Brigade," "When Wilderness was King," etc.
Illustrated by Lewis Noyes

Another answered in a thin, piping voice.

"I reckon them two cusses took along the most or it. Mayhow 'tain't yere, 'cept maybe a few coins that rolled under the table. It wasn't Joe Kirby who picked up the swag, fer I was a watchin' him, an' he never once let go y' his gun. 'Tat damn sneak Carver must a did it, an' then the two or 'em just sorter nat'ally faded away through that door thar."

McAfee swore through his black beard, the full truth swiftly dawning upon him.

"Hell!" he exploded. "So that's the way of it. Then them two was in cahoots from the beginnin'. That's what I told the judge last night, but he said he didn't give a whoop; that he knew more pokers than both or 'em put together. I tell yer them fellers stole that money, an' they killed Beaucaire."

"Hold on a minute," I broke in, my mind cleared of its first passion, and realizing the necessity of control. "Let's keep cool, and go slow. While I believe McAfee is right, we are not going to bring the judge back to life by turning into a mob. There is no proof of cheating, and Kirby has the law behind him. When the judge died he didn't own enough to pay his funeral expenses. Now see here; I happen to know that he left two young daughters. Just stop, and think of them. We saw this game played, and there isn't a man here who believes it was played on the square—that two such hands were ever dealt, or drawn, in poker. We can't prove that Kirby manipulated things to that end; not one of us saw how he worked the trick. There is no chance to get him that way. Then what is it we ought to do? Why, I say, make the chief disgorge—and hanging won't do the business."

"Leave this settlement with me. Then I'll go at it. Two or three of you pick up the body, and carry it to Beaucaire's stateroom—forward there. The rest of you better straighten up the cabin, while I go up and talk with Throckmorton a moment. After that I may want a few of you to go along when I hunt up Kirby. If he proves ugly we'll know how to handle him. McAfee!"

"I'm over here."

"I was just going to say that you better stay here, and keep the fellows all quiet in the cabin. We don't want our plan to leak out, and it will be best to let Kirby and Carver think that everything is all right; that nothing is going to be done."

I waited while several of them gently picked up the body, and bore it forward into the shadow. I slipped away, silently gained the door, and, unobserved, emerged onto the deserted deck without. The sudden change in environment sobered me, and caused me to pause and seriously consider the importance of my mission. Nothing less potent than either fear, or force, would ever make Kirby disgorge. Quite evidently the gambler had deliberately set out to ruin the planter, to rob him of every dollar. Even at the last moment he had coldly insisted on receiving a bill of sale so worded as to leave no possible loophole. He demanded all. The death of the judge, of course, had not been contemplated, but this in no way changed the result. That was an accident, yet I imagined, might not be altogether unwelcome, and I could not rid my memory of that shining weapon in Kirby's hand, or that thought that he would have used it had the need arose. Would he not then fight just as fiercely to keep, as he had to gain? Indeed, I had but one fact upon which I might hope to base action—every watcher believed those cards had been stacked, and that Beaucaire was robbed by means of a trick. Yet, could this be proven? Would any one of those men actually swear that he had seen a suspicious move? If not, then what was there left me except a mere bluff? Absolutely nothing.

Unarmed, never once dreaming of attack, I advanced alone along the dark, narrow strip of deck, leading toward the ladder which mounted to the wheelhouse. There were no lights, and I was practically compelled to feel my way by keeping one hand upon the rail. I had reached the foot of the ladder, my fingers blindly seeking the iron-rungs in the gloom, when a figure, vague, suddenly emerged from some denser shadow and confronted me. Indeed the earliest realization I had of any other presence was a sharp pressure against my breast, and a low voice breathing a menacing threat in my ear.

"I advise you not to move, you young fool. This is a cocked pistol tickling your ribs. Where were you going?"

The black night veiled his face, but language and voice, in spite of its low rumble, told me, the speaker was Kirby. The very coldness of his tone served to send a chill through me.

"To have a word with Throckmorton," I answered, angered at my own fear, and rendered reckless by that burst of passion. "What do you mean by your threat? Haven't you robbed enough men already with cards without resorting to a gun?"

"This is not robbery," and I knew the sharpness of his reply my words had stung, "and it might be well for you to keep a civil tongue in your head. I overheard you say to those men in the cabin, 'So you are going to take care of me, are you?' There was a touch of steel in the low voice. 'Now listen, you business mollifier. Joe Kirby knows exactly what he is doing when he plays any game. I had nothing to do with Beaucaire's death, but those stakes are mine. I told them, and I will kill any man who dares to interfere with me!'

"You mean you refuse to return any of this property?"

"Every cent, every dollar, every any wrong. The man left two daughters, both young girls, who will now be homeless and penniless."

He laughed, and the sound of that laugh was more cruel than the accompanying words.

"Two daughters!" he sneered. "According to my information that strains the relationship a trifle, friend Knox—at least the late judge never took the trouble to acknowledge the fact. Permit me to correct your statement. I happen to know more about Beaucaire's private affairs than you do. He leaves one daughter only. I have never met the young lady, but I understand from excellent authority that she possesses independent means through the death some years ago of her mother. I shall therefore not worry about her loss—and, indeed, she need meet with none, for if she only prove equal to all I have heard I may yet be induced to make her a proposition."

"A proposition?"

"To remain on the plantation as its mistress—plainly, an offer of marriage, if you please. Not such a bad idea, is it?"

I stood speechless, held motionless only by the pressing menace of his pistol, the cold-blooded villainy of the man striking me dumb. This then had probably been his real purpose from the start. He had followed Beaucaire deliberately with this final end in view—of ruining him, and thus compelling his daughter to yield herself.

"And you actually mean that you propose now to force Judge Beaucaire's daughter to marry you?"

"Well, hardly that, although I shall use whatever means I possess. I intend to win her if I can, fair means, or foul."

I drew a deep breath, comprehending now the full iniquity of his plot, and bracing myself to fight it.

"And what about the other girl, Kirby? For there is another girl."

"Yes," rather indifferently, "there is another."

"Of course you know who she is?"

"Certainly—a nigger, a white nigger; the supposed illegitimate daughter of Adelbert Beaucaire, and a slave woman. There is no reason why I should treat about her, is there? She is my property already by law." He laughed again, the same ugly sneering laugh of triumph. "That was why I was so particular about the wording of that bill of sale—I would rather have her than the whole bunch of field hands."

"You believe then the girl has never been freed—either she, or her mother?"

"Believe? I know. I tell you I never play any game with my eyes shut."

"And you actually intend to—hold her as a slave?"

"Well, I'll look her over first before I decide—she would be worth a pot full of money down the river."

The contemptuous, utterly indifferent manner in which he voiced his villainous purpose, would have crazed any man. To me this utterance was the last straw, breaking down every restraint, and leaving me hot, and furious with anger. I forgot the muzzle of the pistol pressed against my side, and the menacing threat in Kirby's low voice. The face of the man was indistinct, a mere outline, but the swift impulse to strike at it was irresistible, and I let him have the blow—a straight-arm jab to the jaw. My clinched knuckles crunched against the flesh, and he reeled back, kept from falling only by the support of the deckhouse. There was no report of a weapon, no outcry, yet, before I could strike again, I was suddenly gripped from behind by a pair of arms, which closed about my throat like a vise, throttling me instantly into sheer helplessness. I struggled madly to break free, straining with all the art of a wrestler, exerting every ounce of strength, but the grasp which held me was unyielding, robbing me of breath, and defeating every effort to call for help. Kirby, dazed yet by my sudden blow, grew eager to take a hand in the affray, struck me a cowardly blow in the face, and swung his undischarged pistol to a level with my eyes.

"D— you!" he ejaculated, and for the first time his voice really exhibited temper. "I'd kill you with this, but for the noise. No, by God! there is a safer way than that to settle with you. Have you got the skunk, Carver?"

"You can bet I have, Joe. I kin choke the life out of him—shall I?"

"No; let up a bit—just enough so he can answer me first. I want to find out what all this means. Now look here, Knox, what is all this to you? Why are you butting in on my game? Was Beaucaire a friend of yours?"

"I can hardly claim that," I admitted. "We never met—till I came aboard this steamer. All I am interested in is justice to others."

"To others? Oh, I suppose you mean those girls—you know them then?"

"I have never even seen them," I said.

ANNAPOLIS WANTS NAVAL LABORATORY

EFFORTS RENEWED TO HAVE MR. DANIELS APPROVE THE SITE RECOMMENDED.

EDISON FAVORED NEW YORK

Washington and Yorktown Also Are Pushing Their Claims—Two Million Dollars Have Been Appropriated for the Institution.

Washington.—Citizens of Annapolis, official and unofficial, have renewed the fight to make certain the location of the new naval experiment and research laboratory in the vicinity of the naval academy. The selection of a site was referred by Secretary of the Navy Daniels to the naval consulting board, and that body, by a vote which was unanimous except for that of Thomas A. Edison, had recommended that it be located just across the Severn river from the naval academy. That report was in the hands of Mr. Daniels just before the United States entered the war, and the beginning of the work of constructing the laboratory was postponed.

It was assumed that Secretary Daniels would accept the recommendation of the board, to which he had referred the matter, but all attempts to make him state his decision definitely have been unsuccessful.

Edison Favored New York.

Mr. Edison favored a site on the water near New York city, holding that the matters of prime importance were proximity to the experts in that vicinity and material and equipment which the laboratory would need. A strong fight was made for Washington, its claim being supported strongly by Admiral Griffin, head of the bureau of weights and standards. Baltimore also wanted to have the laboratory, but it is understood that as Annapolis has been recommended by the consulting board, it will withdraw its claim so that the Maryland congressmen will present a solid front for Annapolis.

The advocates of Yorktown, Va., are the latest to enter the lists for the location of the laboratory. For Yorktown it is claimed that the government has ample ground available and that war vessels of the greatest draught can enter the harbor and approach the wharves without difficulty.

Annapolis Arguments.

A great many strong points are claimed for the Annapolis site, where the government has already established an experimental laboratory at an expenditure of about $600,000, and where it has ample grounds for its indefinite expansion. Satisfactory conditions of water and surroundings are claimed for Annapolis, with a situation which lends itself to complete defense in case of war. The absence of the proximity of a large city, with sewerage contamination of the water and pollution of the air through fumes, is urged as another advantage for Annapolis.

The strongest argument, however, which is presented for Annapolis is the location of the laboratory in the coordination of the work with that of the naval academy, and particularly, that of the post-graduate school, whose work has been renewed after the war, and which is to be steadily enlarged and expanded. Secretary Daniels has expressed great interest in post-graduate education in the navy, and it is proposed to work for a condition where every officer will return after some years of sea duty in some special line.

It is pointed out that an experimental and research laboratory here would be of tremendous value, enabling the student officers to do a great deal of special and research work and making possible the employment of the experts of the laboratory as lecturers at the post-graduate school.

Congress has already appropriated the sum of $2,000,000 for the laboratory, so that it will be constructed upon an ambitious scale.

WHAT WAS THERE TO SAY?

Simple Prank of Fate That Caused Embarrassment Surely Hard Thing to Explain Away.

The minister of a certain small town Indiana church recently held a number of meetings for his young men members, in which he warned them against being fickle in the choice of wives, etc. "Modest young women should always be chosen," he quoted and then delivered a heavy trade against the prevailing short skirts and silk stockings.

Several of the young girls were rather indignant and avoided the minister for a time. But one day as he was coming home from shopping for his wife he met two who at first were rather cold, but as the conversation progressed became distinctly amused and finally departed giggling. The younger one fired this final retort: "I'm glad you changed your mind on some things, Reverend Sir."

The minister wondered on that last speech all the way home. Then he reported it to his wife. She looked at him closely and then burst out laughing. "No wonder," she exclaimed, and held up for him to see the magazine he was carrying.

Same way, in packing his bundles together he had turned it inside out and there, facing the young women, had been an advertisement of very fancy rose-colored silk stockings on a very beautiful model.—Indianapolis News.

COAL CAR SHORTAGE NOT ANTICIPATED BY DIRECTOR HINES

Sees Danger in Condition Being Exaggerated to Boost Prices.

OVER 1,000,000 OPEN TOPS

On Railroads, Ten Per Cent of Which Need Repairs, Leaving 775,000 Suitable for Coal Loading; Believes in Unified Control Like in War Time.

In response to a Senate resolution calling upon him for information relative to the reported and prospective shortage of coal cars, Director General Hines of the Railroad Administration has reported that while there has been some car shortage in the bituminous fields, he did not anticipate any shortage in transportation which will be in any sense exceptional or abnormal or which will justify oppressive prices for coal.

"The great danger that confronts the public in this matter," Mr. Hines asserted, "is that any shortage either in production by the mines or in transportation may be exaggerated so as to serve as a pretext for heavy increases in the coal prices, which in my opinion, are already high, generally speaking. It is worthy of serious consideration whether Congressional action can be taken to protect the public under these circumstances from excessive coal prices."

In answer to the specific inquiries embraced in the Senate resolution, Director Hines stated that "the number of open top cars in the United States is approximately 1,067,000, of which over 99 per cent are owned by the federal operated railroads and all of which are, generally speaking, subject to interchangeable use on federal operated roads and non-federal operated roads. At the present time something less than 10 per cent of these cars are awaiting repairs, either light or heavy. A large number are held for very light repairs which can be speedily applied. During federal control the methods of classification to determine what cars need repairs have been made much more strict, with the result that large numbers of cars are now shown as needing repairs which formerly would not have been shown. The Railroad Administration program of car repairs will, it is expected, gradually reduce the proportion of cars awaiting repairs despite the stricter classification."

"The total result is that there are now approximately 900,000 open top cars in the United States ready for use without any repairs, and about 775,000 of these are suitable for coal loading. This type of equipment is, however, regularly used for a very heavy tonnage of other bulk commodities which cannot be handled except in open top cars. Adequate transportation for many of these commodities, particularly those used in highway construction and repairs, general building, and railroad ballast and improvement work, now requires a large number of these cars. Those actually in current use for the transportation of coal number approximately 600,000. It must be remembered that box cars have always been used to an important extent in some parts of the country for transporting coal."

"During the first five months of the present year open top cars were regularly available greatly in excess of shippers' orders for them. The maximum was reached in February and March when the surplus of open top cars daily available amounted to the extraordinary totals of 187,329 and 192,383 respectively."

"The purchase of 45,000 cars available for coal loading was arranged for by the director general for delivery to railroads under federal control. All these cars have been or will be put in service as rapidly as practicable, whether transferred to the several railroad companies or not. Thirty-seven thousand have already been put in service. The remaining 20,000 already built are now being numbered and lettered and are being placed in service as fast as this work is being completed. The 4,000 not yet built will be put in service as rapidly as they are constructed."

"Of the 45,000 cars available for coal loading thus purchased, 4,750 have not yet been assigned definitely to any one or more railroad companies; 32,500 cars have been assigned to various railroad companies and definitely accepted by them; the remaining 7,750 cars have been allocated to certain of the railroad companies, but up to this time these cars have not been definitely accepted due to unwillingness of said companies to accept the cars. Mandatory orders to require the cars to be accepted have not been issued pending full opportunity for discussion with the companies, but the fact that in these instances the cars have not been accepted by the companies is not delaying the cars being put in service as rapidly as they are constructed."

"Cars when available in full of all requirements are placed for loading in accordance with shippers' orders. Whenever requirements exceed the cars available, each railroad endeavors to allocate cars to the service of the several commodities requiring open top cars so that the same relative service is accorded to each without undue discrimination. Commodities which can obtain adequate transportation in the rougher class of closed cars, although more conveniently handled in open top cars, are required to use rough box or stock cars when available in order that open top cars may be released for coal loading."

"The cars available daily for bituminous coal loading are prorated among the mines on the basis of the rated capacity of the mines, or their orders, if less than that rating. The rated capacity is ascertained by a formula which has been adopted and promulgated for the use of all railroads by the Railroad Administration.

"It is not believed that further action by Congress will aid in meeting the demands for the transportation of the coal which will be needed during the remainder of this calendar year. The matter is largely dependent upon practical conditions which will not be affected by legislation."

"The great danger that confronts the public in this matter is that any shortage either in production by the mines or in transportation may be exaggerated so as to serve as a pretext for heavy increases in the coal prices, which in my opinion, are already high, generally speaking. It is worthy of serious consideration whether Congressional action can be taken to protect the public under these circumstances from excessive coal prices. In this connection it is important to remember that shortages in the production of coal by the mines and also in the transportation of coal by the railroads have not been exceptional in the fall and winter months, and any effort to stress unduly these conditions this year will probably be for the purpose of creating a pretext for increasing the prices of coal to the consuming public and the public should be given the benefit of reliable information on the subject."

"The ability of the railroads to transport all the bituminous coal required for the rest of this year will, of course, be largely dependent upon the amount required. On that point no accurate information seems to be available."

"If 500,000,000 tons shall be needed in the present year, the prospects are that its transportation will be accompanied by difficulties and, especially in view of the heavy business to be expected this fall it will be exceedingly difficult to transport the amount required. These difficulties will not be due primarily or principally to the car shortage, but rather to the fact that an abnormal demand for coal will be concentrated into an unusually short period, when the necessary use of the railroads for other purposes will make it difficult to handle the coal."

Expressing the belief that "unified control will admit of such specialization on coal as may be necessary to prevent real hardship," Director Hines concluded his statement by saying:

"I do not anticipate any shortage in transportation, which will be in any sense exceptional or abnormal or which will justify oppressive prices for coal."

FARMER'S SICKLY LITTLE GIRL IS MUCH IMPROVED

The Father Tells How Two Bottles of Nerv-Worth Made Her Over.

A standing Nerv-Worth claim is this—that Nerv-Worth "blesses" equally the weak and ailing child, the worn-out veteran, and men and women of all ages. Below is clear proof of the first part of this proposition. It comes from a highly esteemed farmer who lives on Route 3, Piquette, Ohio:

Nerv-Worth Company—My little daughter (she is nine years old) has been troubled with stomach and bowel trouble for the past three years and as we had tried a number of remedies without finding one that would help her we had about given up hope of finding any relief for her when we heard of Nerv-Worth. She has taken two bottles and has been getting better and better since the first day she started to take Nerv-Worth. She has gained three pounds in weight, is more cheerful and we have hopes of her recovery."

Your dollar back at the Connellsville Drug Company if Nerv-Worth does not benefit you. The Broadway Drug Company sells Nerv-Worth in Scottsdale.

Smithfield.

SMITHFIELD, Sept. 1.—Rev. Ralph Bell was called to Vanderbit Sunday to preach the funeral sermon for Mrs. William Knight.

Frank B. Whoolery has taken the oath of office as postmaster at Smithfield and will take charge October 1. Miss Frankenberg, present incumbent, will go to Fairchance as assistant postmistress there.

A representative delegation of local veterans attended the 19th annual reunion of the Fayette County Veterans' association at Uniontown Thursday. They all report it as one of the best and most enjoyable held since the association was organized. The writer was unable to attend because of illness, it being the first meeting of the organization on his part of the local post, took violently ill at Fairchance upon his returning from the reunion. He was brought to his home here in a taxi and has been confined to his home ever since. His condition, however, is improved.

Mrs. T. R. Lynch and children of Fairbank were guests of Mrs. Lynch's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. O'Neil, over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Campbell and children of Point Marion visited relatives in the borough over Saturday and Sunday.

The borough schools opened today with a full complement of teachers. Reagan & Lynch have completed the concrete construction to the borough line on the north and moved their equipment to the Sackett place, south of the borough. They will begin the concrete construction there. The approaches to the borough on both sides and the Kiger hill will, on account of the grades, be of brick construction. Kiger hill is ready for the brick.

The union Sunday school picnic was called off on account of the rain. A festival was held in the town hall in the evening.

THE ENGINEER HAS ESCAPED SERIOUS RESULTS, HE SAYS

Perry Anderson, No. 6230 Butler St., Pittsburg, is Praising Plant Juice.

The history of Plant Juice, the way in which the manufacturer first made it, and the great events that followed have been the subject of numerous newspaper articles throughout America, but here is something more to the point. Plant Juice is now being introduced in Pennsylvania and it has already a firm hold here, where it is reviving and revitalizing hundreds of citizens in all walks of life. That this statement is true is only necessary to listen to the testimonials of local people who have given Plant Juice a trial.

For instance, the signed testimonial of Mrs. Perry Anderson, who resides at No. 6230 Butler street, Pittsburg, and is employed as engineer by one of the large firms of that city, and has hosts of friends, as he has resided here for the past 18 years and is a man of the utmost honor and integrity, stated:

"For the past six or seven years I had a great deal of trouble with my stomach and all the medicines I had taken failed to give me relief. I had dreadful pains in the pit of my stomach, which was all bloated with gas. I had headaches and was very dizzy at times; had no appetite and could not keep anything in my stomach. I could scarcely sleep at night I was so nervous and did not know what to do to find relief. Finally a friend told me of Plant Juice and advised me to try it. I did so, and I am now glad to state that I found it to be just the medicine I needed, as it has put my stomach in fine shape. I sleep well at night and can eat anything I want and digest it. I am glad to recommend Plant Juice to others."

NO SHORTAGE OF SUGAR IN THE UNITED STATES NOR HAS THERE BEEN

Difficulty in Securing Regional Supplies Due to Maladjustment of Distribution in Seasons.

There is no national sugar shortage imminent in the United States, and in no year since the beginning of the war has there been a country-wide shortage, it is declared by Commerce Monthly, which says:

"A study of the facts of supply and consumption shows that what regional shortages did occur were due to maladjustment in distribution, in respect both to different localities and to different periods of the year. Next year no excess of consumption is likely. Present prospects indicate that the supply will be normal."

"The United States consumes more sugar than any other country, but ranks only fifth in the world's production. Consequently we are forced to import three-fourths of our sugar supply, which makes us an important factor in the international market."

"The United States consumed an annual average of 3,797,000 tons of sugar before the war, equal to over one-fifth of the world's total production. Of this amount we produced only 822,000 tons or 23 per cent."

"Cuba now leads the world in sugar production. Before the war the British Indian and German sugar crops ranked first and second respectively. The Cuban crop being only third. In 1917 and 1918 Cuba produced more sugar than either British India or Germany, and her estimated 1919 crop is larger than the estimated crops of these two countries combined and more than twice as large as her own average pre-war crop. It will amount this year to nearly one-fourth of the world's production in contrast to less than one-eighth before the war. British India and Germany, each of which before the war raised about one-seventh of the world's crop, will raise this year one-seventh and one-twelfth respectively. The Javan crop has so far increased in importance since the outbreak of the war that the 1919 crop is estimated at over one-tenth of the world's crop. The total world's crop of 1919 is estimated at 18,312,000 tons, approximately a million tons less than the 1918 crop, but over a half million tons more than the average pre-war crop."

HICKORY SMOKED HAMS

Why Burn Cords of Wood When a Toasted Hickory Stick Will Furnish Plenty of Smoke.

[National Crop Improvement Service.] IF YOU have never eaten a ham smoked with hickory, you have never eaten ham. The southern hog growers have a wonderful opportunity to supply the world with this most delicious product.

"I saw a scheme down in Birmingham the other day," says Mr. Frank Baackes of the American Steel & Wire Co., "which will probably revolutionize the whole packing business so far as curing hams and bacon is concerned."

"The old smoke house method was to get a few cords of hickory wood and build a sandage fire but the new idea is to merely toast a piece of hickory wood and drive the smoke into a double chamber where it is claimed that the same degree of curing can be done in twenty-four hours that used to take a week."

"The economy in wood recommends the plan and it seems odd that nobody ever thought of it before."
